Yosef Steinmetz is an associate attorney who practices in both the arenas of litigation and transactional law. Yosef's experience includes assisting in the negotiation and drafting of different types of commercial agreements, as well as the dutiful representation of clients engaged in contested litigation. Yosef is a graduate of the Sandra Day O'Connor School of Law at Arizona State University. While studying there, Yosef served as a judicial extern for Judge Samuel Thumma of the Arizona Court of Appeals. Additionally, Yosef served as a student associate at the Innovation Advancement Program (a clinic that focuses on transactional law for start-up companies).

Yosef believes the practice of law creates an important bond between attorney and client and he strives to meet the weight of that bond with every interaction.
